Humans Only !!!

Should roles be filled only by humans, or can we name automated systems?

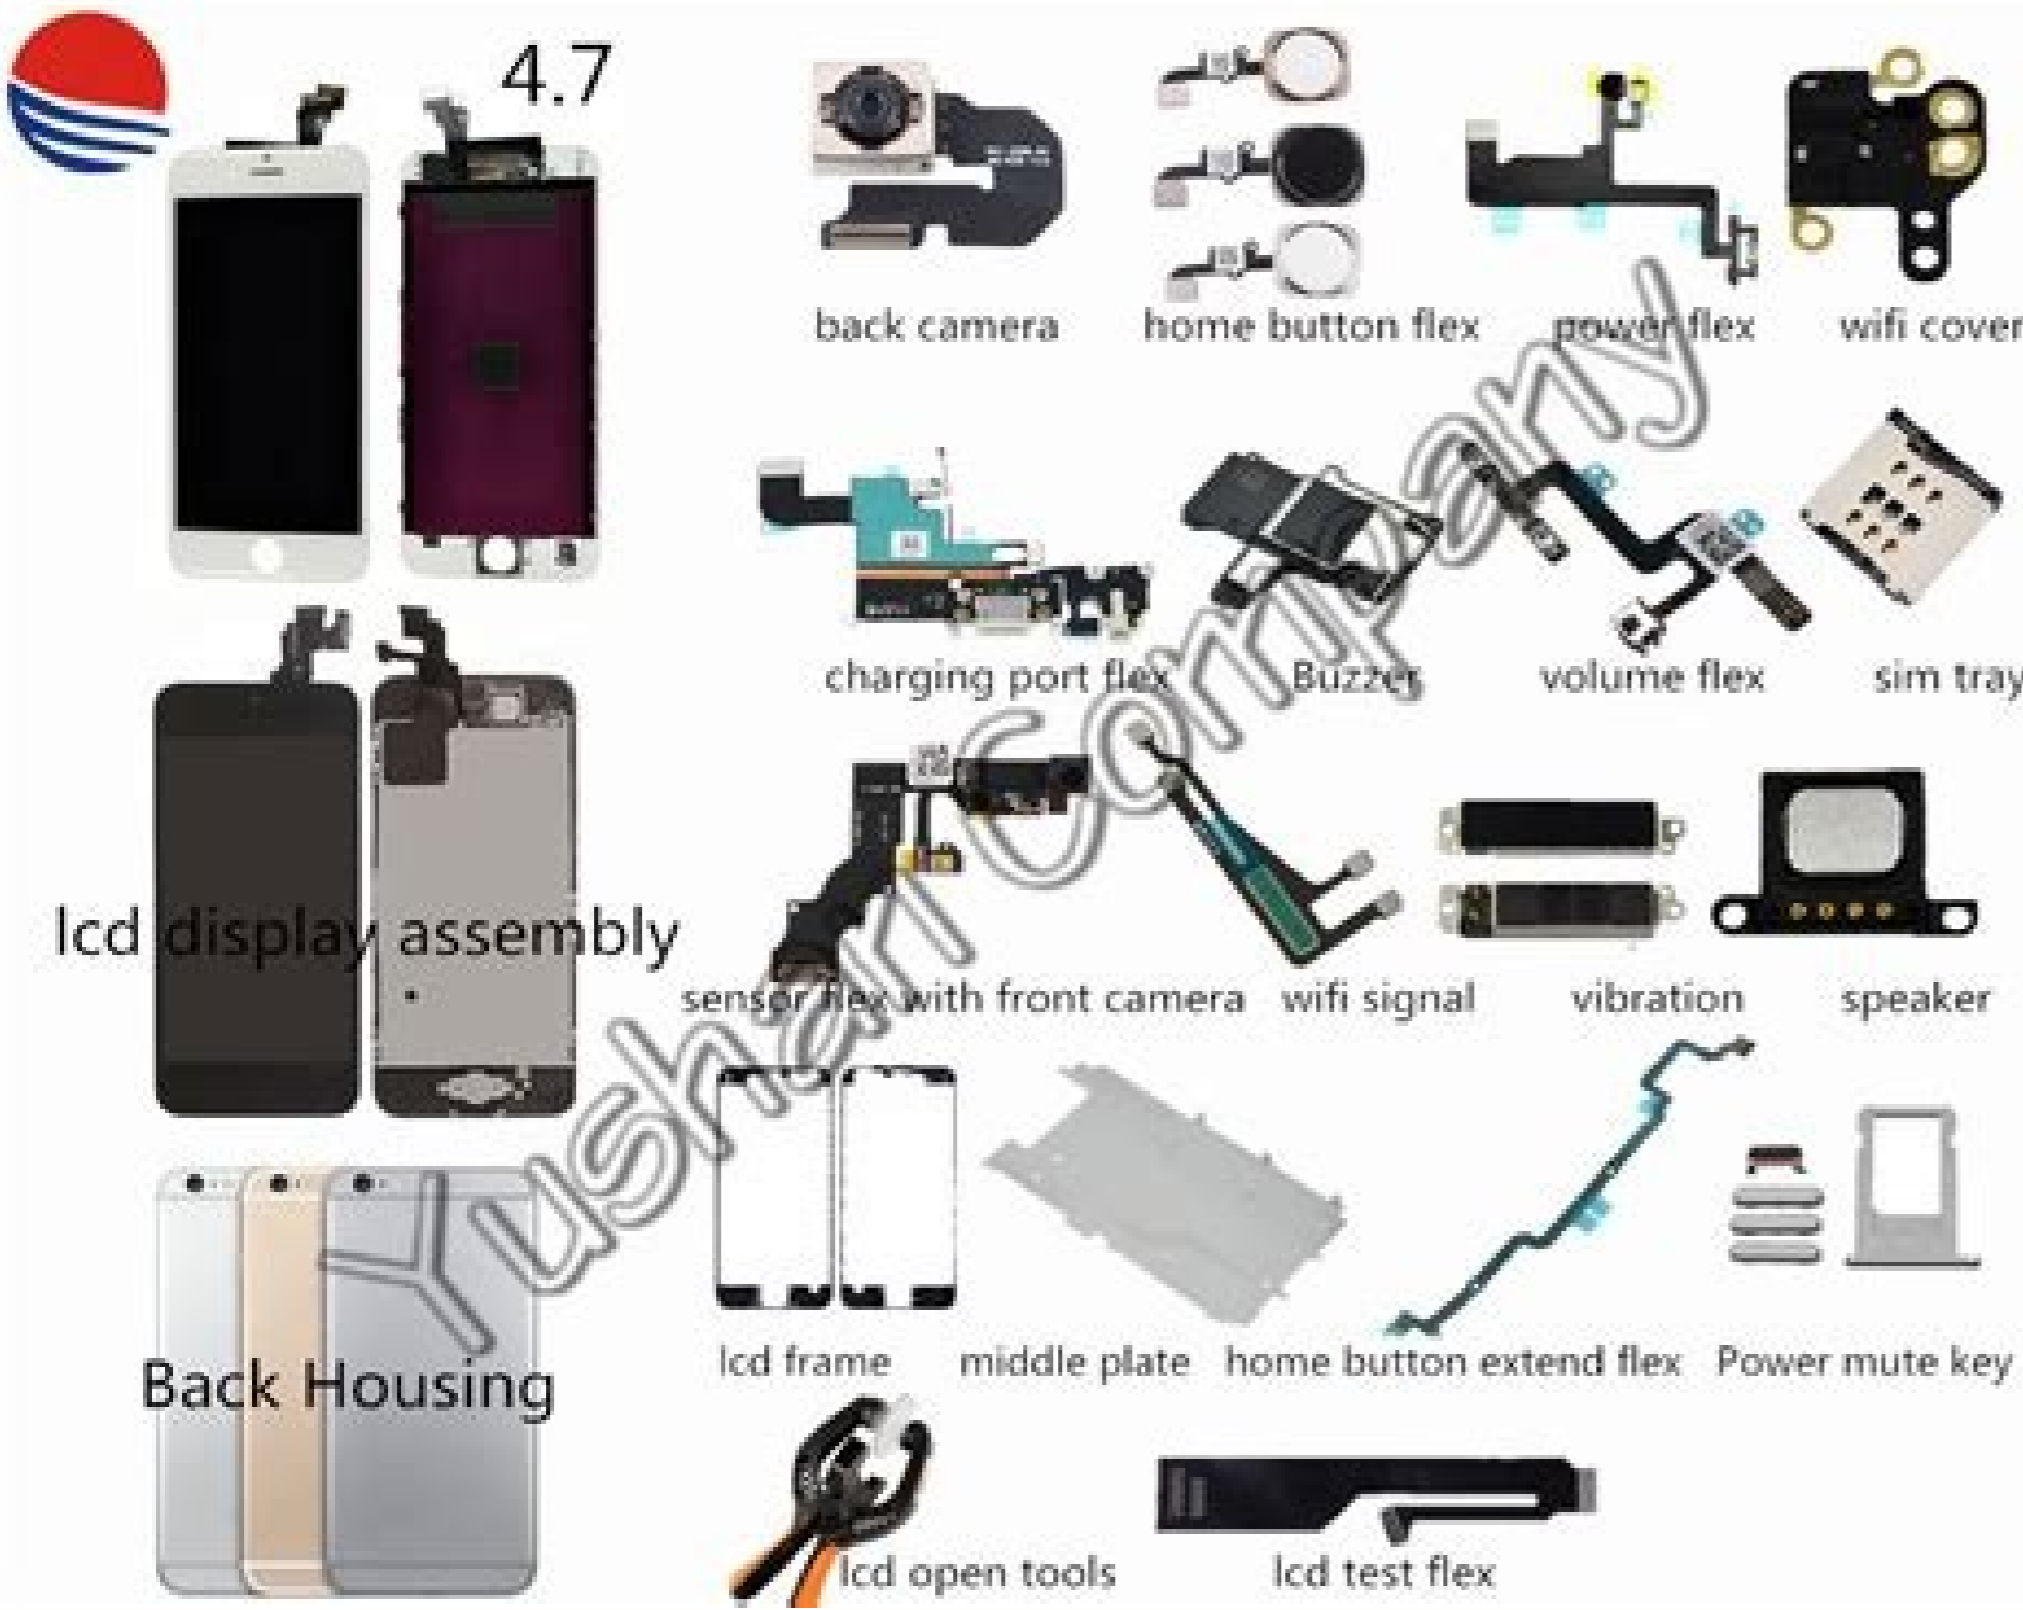

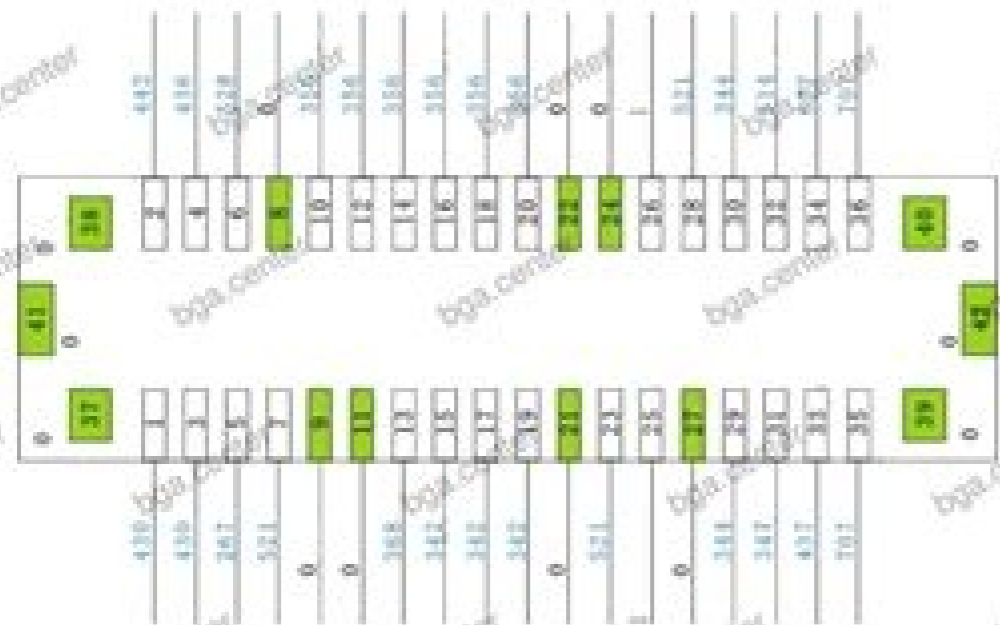

Roles can be either:

- We like the role to mention the human when the human feels like they're interacting with the system (even if that interaction is through another system such as a web browser)
- But consider the system boundary (context diagram); if an automated system connects to our system, it's fine to name that system as the role
- For example, out pet sales system "talks" to the bank's automated credit card processing system, so Credit Card Processor would be a fine role name

A role can correspond to a human or an automated system.
